Hitler Tactics Prove Successful in Voting

Almost 400,000 West Germans Approve Nazi-Like Socialist Reich Party in Lower Saxony Election

Hannover, Germany, May 7 (AP)—Hitler's campaign tactics paid off in a startling election success in lower Saxony state today for a new Nazi-like German political party.

Though the established Socialists and Christian Democrats led the counting expected, nearly 400,000 West Germans voted in Sunday's lower Saxony election for the Socialist Reich (Empire) party (SRP)—a group so much like the Nazis that the federal government is trying to outlaw it.

Led by former supporters of Hitler, the party campaigned on a promise to "restore the many good features of Nazism." Its tactics were so rough the federal government banned its 6,000 uniformed

"Reichsfront" guards as terrorists. But when the votes were counted this morning, the SRP had taken fourth place in a 10-party field. In its first test at the polls it had won 11 per cent of the votes, and 16 seats in the 159-member Parliament.

The Socialists, who now govern lower Saxony in coalition with the Catholic Centrist party, again led with 33.7 per cent of the total vote, giving them 64 seats. Federal Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Christian Democrats and the German Party, campaigning together, took 23.8 per cent of the vote and 34 seats.

Two Hundred Are Killed in Quake In Salvador Cities

Many Houses, Buildings Are Destroyed in Jucupa and Chinameca

San Salvador, El Salvador, May 7 (AP)—At least 200 persons were reported killed in an earthquake yesterday in the cities of Jucupa and Chinameca.

Jucupa is about 90 miles and Chinameca about 92 miles east of the capital. Jucupa has a population of about 12,000 and Chinameca of about 17,000.

The strong quakes, which began at 5 p. m. yesterday, destroyed many homes and public buildings. Many persons were said to have been buried in ruins. The exact number of dead is not yet known, but authorities estimate about 200 are buried in the debris.

Towns Are Damaged

Nearby towns, Nueva Guadalupe, Santiago De Maria, Usulután and Caserio, east of the Lempa river, also suffered great damage.

The Red Cross dispatched doctors and medicine to the scene and public works ministry workmen started clearing blocked roads. All the towns are situated in the neighborhood of San Miguel volcano, but it did not erupt. The quake was attributed to underground activity of the volcano, however.

Two Fires Result After Mazdin Is Injured in Crash

John Mazdin, Jr., 21, of 381 Delaware avenue, was hospitalized for possible concussion, lacerations and contusions following an unusual accident at Phoenicia Sunday afternoon, in which an automobile was damaged, a small grass fire and a house fire were started.

Mazdin was taken to the Benedictine Hospital, where his condition was reported today as "good." Two passengers, Frank Banaskie, 17, of 32 Rondout street, and Frank Prusack, 25, of 271 Second avenue, were treated for minor injuries by Dr. Charles A. Quinn of Phoenicia.

Corporal Ray Dunn of the state police reported that Mazdin was driving west on High street in the village of Phoenicia and failed to negotiate a curve, striking and breaking an electric power pole. The automobile, which hit the pole head-on, was badly damaged, Dunn reported.

High tension wires, severed by the accident, dropped to the ground and started a small grass

Ferry Is Idled By Broken Shaft

The Kingston-Rhinecliff ferryboat, George Clinton, is expected to be tied up for most of this week because of a broken crankshaft and housing on its fuel pump, a spokesman for the local office of the New York State Bridge Authority said today.

The ferry has been out of service since its 9:40 a. m. trip Sunday when the part broke. It will take about three days to make the part at Grove City, Pa., and about two more days to ship it here. The boat, meanwhile, will remain tied up at the Kingston dock.

Banking Group Drops Proposal

Plan to Curb Rentals on Stores, Offices Is Overboard

Washington, May 7 (AP)—The Senate Banking Committee today threw overboard, for the present at least, President Truman's proposal to impose rent controls on stores, office space and other commercial property.

As the Senate Banking Committee began 20 days of hearings on Mr. Truman's request for a two-year extension and revision of the defense production act, Chairman Maybank announced the committee's finding, reached at a closed session.

There will be no testimony on commercial rents because there has not been sufficient study of the question, Maybank said. Written briefs will be received, however, and the question will be left to the end of the hearing "if it is taken up at all."

Maybank also declared his personal opposition to the beef price rollback announced by the Office of Price Stabilization, and declared he was against "tampering in any way" with the parity provisions which govern ceilings on food.

"The effect of the beef order will be to cut back production, thus defeating the primary purpose of the defense production act," Maybank said in a prepared statement.

Is First Witness

Defense Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson was called as the committee's first witness. The present law, which includes wage-price control authority, expires June 30.

In requesting a two-year extension, Mr. Truman on April 26 also asked Congress for additional authority to curb inflationary pressures, which he said "have

Hong Kong Stands Guard, Prepares For Big Eruption

Three Jet Airfields Are Among New Defense Works; Roads Are Built

By STANLEY RICH
Hong Kong, May 7 (AP)—Along Hong Kong's 17-mile border with Red China, British police and Chinese Communist soldiers stand guard face to face in stolid, silent cooperation.

For the past year Britain has been building a defensive network against the day when this silent cooperation might erupt into roaring hostility.

Today there are three jet airfields where last year there were only rice paddies. Exclusive Fan Ling golf course sparkles with the sheen of newly-built gun emplacements. Holes dug for other guns pockmark the landscape.

Ten new roads have been built. More are under construction.

Frank H. King, of Dallas, a general executive of the Associated Press, and I, toured the eastern half of the border today.

With Chief Inspector Roderick Mackenzie we visited three check-points through which Chinese farmers, traders and potential troublemakers may enter or leave this British crown colony. At Lowu passengers on the train from Canton must get off and walk to the middle of a 30-yard wooden bridge to show travel permits and pass through customs.

Can Screen Persons
Officially, Hong Kong authorities are negotiating to do away with this. Unofficially, they're not too displeased. It's easier for them to screen possible troublemakers.

On the middle of the bridge today stood three Chinese Communist soldiers. One appeared to be no more than 14. Above them was an archway, with pictures of a smiling Stalin on the left and a smiling Mao Tse-tung on the right.

En route to the next point, a soldier saw a strange looking building high on a hillside.

"Observation post," said Mackenzie. "All concrete. We've got four of them now and are building more. Each post has seven men, with a Chinese (Nationalist) corporal or sergeant in charge. Everything that moves is marked down in their book."

Jets Bomb Troop, Arms, Transport Centers North of Pyongyang

Tokyo, May 7 (AP)—South Korean infantrymen pushed the ends of the battle line northward today. Other UN forces took up the slack in between while armored patrols probed for withdrawing Reds.

South Koreans pressed across the 38th Parallel toward Red-held Inje in the east. Other Republican troops moved the western anchor of the Korea fighting line farther northwest of Seoul.

A tank-infantry column rumbled through Chunchon on the east-central front Monday, and a mile beyond, without meeting opposition.

Other armored groups fanned out along the center. They found no Reds.

Communists sniped on tank expeditions in the west Monday. A U.S. Eighth army communique said Reds reportedly fired rockets at tanks east of Uijongbu.

American jets left their rockets behind for a mass bomb attack on Red troop, supply and transport centers north of the Communist capital of Pyongyang. Thirty-five shooting stars made bomb raids in three waves on railway yards in the Suncheon area.

Six Planes Downed

The Pyongyang radio claimed six UN planes were shot down and five airmen captured. The Allied command does not comment on Red propaganda claims. The Red broadcast also listed these asserted wartime UN losses: 65,000 troops captured, 326,000 casualties, 1,900 planes destroyed or damaged.

Red ground forces made their strongest bid northwest of Seoul. South Korean troops made a limited advance against North Koreans who had been told there would be no six offensive because "the war is about over." U.N. intelligence officers attributed this statement to a Communist officer.

They did not make clear whether the officer had been taken prisoner or whether the report came from other captured Reds. U.N. spokesmen offered no interpretation of the significance of the statement. Presumably the Red officer meant the war had again reached a stalemate; that neither side could win and therefore neither would open an all-out offensive.

Red Efforts Blocked

Intelligence reports said the same officer reported allied warplanes blocked Red efforts to get tanks from Manchuria to support the now halted Communist spring offensive.

MacArthur Stand Takes Two Angles

He Says Red China Can Be Squashed Without Fear of Russian Entry Into War

Also Sees 'Assist'

Stalemate, He Believes, Will Give Russians Encouragement

Washington, May 7 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Marshall carries President Truman's case against Gen. Douglas MacArthur today to a Senate divided—pretty well on party lines—over a momentous foreign policy dispute.

MacArthur wound up late Saturday three days of grueling questioning by senators inquiring into his ouster by Mr. Truman.

Reduced from its verbiage of 174,000 words of testimony and cross examination, the deposed Pacific commander's major stand was this:

A. Red China can be brought to her knees by supply and industrial bombing without great danger of Russian entry into the war.

B. If there is no victory in Korea but only the "bloody stalemate" he says must come from administration plans for a "limited" war there, the Soviets may be encouraged to strike anywhere in the world.

Against this, Marshall—like MacArthur a five star general—obviously planned to insist that any expansion of the war to the mainland of China involves a direct and weighty risk of starting World War 3.

Saw 'Grave Threat'

When he fired MacArthur just 27 days ago, Mr. Truman in a quick follow-up speech to the nation said the policies MacArthur had openly advocated carried a grave threat of touching off a new global war.

Marshall faced hundreds of questions—possibly thousands. Like MacArthur, he was to testify behind closed doors before the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees, with Chairman Russell (D-Ga.) of the former group presiding.

And like MacArthur's testimony, Marshall's was to be made public piecemeal after being screened for matter whose release might harm the state department officials' feel might affect security.

Russell said the two committees, making an inquiry into MacArthur's ouster and the nation's diplomatic and military policies, probably would not seek testimony from Mr. Truman himself. He said he assumed Marshall, Secretary of State Acheson, the joint chiefs of staff and others

23 Airmen Perish In Crash of B-36

Albuquerque Disaster Is Worst in History of Biggest Bomber

Albuquerque, May 7 (AP)—A giant B-36 bomber crashed in flames as it tried to land at Kirtland Air Force Base yesterday, killing 23 airmen. The explosion made the base resemble a junkyard.

It was the fifth and worst B-36 crash since the air force put the 139-ton, six-engined bombers—the world's largest—into operation in August 1946. The toll of 23 dead is just three less than the combined deaths in the other four.

Col. Perry G. Grith, Kirtland commander, said the flaming wreckage "looked like a burning oil field. Flames shot up almost 200 feet in the air."

"I didn't want to look," said Lt. William S. Knipple. "I turned my back." Knipple is one of three members of the 188th Fighter Squadron who saw the crash.

Only Two Survivors

The two survivors were in critical condition at Sandia Special Weapons Base Hospital. Sandia adjoins Kirtland.

Twenty-two men were killed outright. The 23rd died at Sandia a few minutes later. The bomber, almost as long as a city block, had just finished a three-hour flight from Carswell Air Force Base, Fort Worth, Tex.

Kirtland firefighters arrived at the scene—some two blocks from the municipal airport terminal—less than four minutes after the crash at 12:30 p. m. (MST). The three injured and bodies of 10 dead were thrown clear. Crash crews had to prowl the mangled wreckage for the others.

Winds in excess of 40 miles an hour stirred up a billowing sandstorm and fanned the flames quickly to a parked C-54 air force transport and a small, private cargo plane.

Minutes before, the bomber caused windows to rattle and walls to vibrate by roaring not over 400 feet above the city.

Pvt. William J. Powers, Woodhaven, N. Y., aircraft mechanic, was one of the passengers killed.

Public Holiday Is Celebrated, Festive Air Pervades Cairo

Cairo, May 7 (AP)—Precious gifts poured into Cairo's Abdin Palace today following the gala marriage at which King Farouk yesterday made beautiful 17-year-old Narmeen Sadek his queen wife.

As the Nile kingdom continued its jubilant rejoicing at the nuptials with a public holiday today, Farouk and his commoner bride prepared for a tea party at the palace tonight. A gala diplomatic reception tomorrow night will wind up the festivities.

The chiefs of foreign diplomatic missions arrived at the palace at mid-morning today, bringing gifts from their heads of state.

U. S. Ambassador Jefferson Caffery delivered from President Truman a set of four matched Steuben glass vases. Truman had given one vase—a larger one—to Iran's Shah on his recent marriage.

From King George VI came a massive silver inkstand, handed over by Britain's Ambassador Sir Ralph Stevenson.

What the Russians were giving—if anything—was a deep dark secret.

Gifts of Solid Gold

Many of the gifts were of solid gold. Some were decorated with diamonds and other precious stones.

Cairo's diplomatic corps is presenting, as a body, a gold plate set with precious stones. The Egyptian cabinet is giving a gold tray with small gold cups ornamented with diamonds.

King Abdullah of Hashemite Jordan set a 12-piece toilet set of pure gold, studded with diamonds and other precious stones, along with two gold chandeliers, the British-owned Egyptian Gazette reported.

The wedding of Farouk and Narmeen was announced to the joyful public yesterday by the booming of 101 salute guns. They set off a gigantic double celebration, of the marriage and of the 15th anniversary of the 31-year-old monarch's reign.

While the bride waited in her dowry mother's modest home, a 20-minute all-male Moslem ceremony at Kubbeh Palace joined the couple late in the morning.

Western Europe Would Be in Peril, He Says at Hearing

Washington, May 7 (AP)—Secretary of Defense Marshall contended today to senators that Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Korean war proposals would risk "an all-out war with the Soviet Union."

Replying to MacArthur's attacks on the administration's Far Eastern policies, Marshall also said:

1. The Truman administration's unwavering policy is to deny totalitarianism—Fascism to the Chinese Communists and to oppose seating of the Reds in the United Nations.

2. A Jan. 12 memorandum of the joint chiefs of staff, which MacArthur contended supported his proposals for fighting the Korean war by direct action against Communist China, was drafted for use if American troops had to withdraw from Korea.

3. The memorandum was discarded when it became apparent that American troops had turned the tide of battle.

4. The memorandum contained 16 courses of recommended action, only four of which were quoted by MacArthur in his testimony last week to senators inquiring into his dismissal as Far Eastern commander and policy dispute involved in it.

5. MacArthur was fired because of "excessive independence of judgment" not only with the President, but the chiefs of staff and Marshall himself.

Would Risk Conflict

Testifying at a closed session with his "combed" testimony made public later, Marshall said MacArthur's plan would risk an all-out world conflict "even at the expense of losing our allies and wrecking the coalition of free peoples throughout the world."

MacArthur has proposed inter-continental economic squeeze against Red China, blockade of its coasts, air operations over Manchuria and use of Chinese Nationalist troops from Formosa.

Marshall said MacArthur "would have us, on our own initiative, carry the conflict beyond Korea against the mainland of Communist China, both from the sea and from the air."

"He would have us accept the risk of involvement, not only in an extension of the war with Red China, but in an all-out war with the Soviet Union," the defense secretary said, adding:

"He (MacArthur) would have us do this even though the effect of such action might expose Western Europe to attack by the millions of Soviet troops poised in middle and eastern Europe."

MacArthur had argued that his proposals ought to be acceptable to other members of the United Nations. But he said that if they were not, the United States should "go it alone."

MacArthur contended, too, that the moves he advocated would not involve any greater risk of Russian entry into war than had the first American troops intervention in Korea.

He said Russia was hamstrung from a supply standpoint in Asia and could not launch a major offensive there.

Deplores Necessity

Marshall, at the outset of his testimony, said he deplored what he called the necessity for testifying in contradiction to "a brother army officer."

Then, in later discussion of MacArthur, he said it is "completely understandable and, in fact, at times commendable that a theater commander should become so wholly wrapped up in his own aims and responsibilities that some of the directives received by him from higher authority are not those that he would have written for himself."

There is nothing new about this sort of thing in our military history. What is new, and what has brought about the necessity for General MacArthur's removal, is the wholly unprecedented situation of a local commander publicly expressing his displeasure at and his disagreement with the foreign

Groups Combine Efforts For Hurley Fire Hall, School

Taxpayers of Hurley Fire District will vote Tuesday night on a proposition to expend $22,000 for a new fire house to provide space for housing fire equipment and meeting space for the commissioners and firemen of the area. The polls will be open from 7 to 10 p. m. at the town hall.

At a meeting of the Parents' Club of the Hurley School held May 3 endorsement to the fire district proposition was expressed. Voters of the school district will go to the polls June 6 to decide whether to authorize a bond issue of $135,000 for the construction of new classrooms, a gymnasium and other facilities. Members of the Parents' Club felt there should be no rivalry between the two building projects, since, it was said, both are considered necessary to the overlapping districts.

Jay Molyneux, president of the Hurley Fire Company and a member of the Parents' Club, pointed out that the fire hall would not be a substitute for the proposed gymnasium in the school, since the firemen's headquarters will not provide a basketball court. The ceiling will be too low in the first place, and the building is designed primarily to house fire-fighting equipment and to provide for the firemen a place for instruction and training, and where members of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association could meet.

"He (MacArthur) would have us do this even though the effect of such action might expose Western Europe to attack by the millions of Soviet troops poised in mid and eastern Europe."

MacArthur had argued that his proposals ought to be acceptable to other members of the United Nations. But he said that if they were not, the United States should "go it alone."

MacArthur contended, too, that the moves he advocated would not involve any greater risk of Russian entry into war than had the first American troops intervention in Korea.

He said Russia was hamstrung from a supply standpoint in Asia and could not launch a major offensive there.

Depletes Necessity
Marshall, at the outset of his testimony, said he deplores what he called the necessity for testing in contradiction to "a brother army officer."

Then, in later discussion of MacArthur, he said it is "completely understandable and, in fact, at times commendable that a theater commander should become so wholly wrapped up in his own aims and responsibilities that some of the directives received by him from higher authority are not those that he would have written for himself."

The defense secretary continued: "There is nothing new about this sort of thing in our military history. What is new, and what has brought about the necessity for General MacArthur's removal, is the wholly unprecedented situation of a local commander publicly expressing his displeasure at and his disagreement with the foreign

Many Houses, Buildings Are Destroyed in Jucupa and Chinameca

San Salvador, El Salvador, May 7 (AP)—At least 200 persons were reported killed in an earthquake yesterday in the cities of Jucupa and Chinameca.

Jucupa is about 90 miles and Chinameca about 92 miles east of this capital. Jucupa has a population of about 12,000 and Chinameca of about 17,000.

The strong quakes, which began at 5 p. m. yesterday, destroyed many homes and public buildings. Many persons were said to have been buried in the debris.

Towns Are Damaged
Nearby towns, Nueva Guadalupe, Santiago De Maria, Usulután and Caserio, east of the Lempa river, also suffered great damage.

The Red Cross dispatched doctors and medicine to the scene and public works ministry workers started clearing blocked roads.

All the towns are situated in the neighborhood of San Miguel volcano, but it did not erupt. The quake was attributed to underground activity of the volcano, however.

Two Fires Result After Mazdin Is Injured in Crash

John Mazdin, Jr., 21, of 381 Delaware avenue, was hospitalized for possible concussion, lacerations and contusions following an unusual accident at Phoenixia Sunday afternoon in which an automobile was damaged, a small grass fire and a house fire were started.

Mazdin was taken to the Benedictine Hospital, where his condition was reported today as "good." Two passengers, Frank Banaskie, 17, of 32 Rondout street, and Frank Prusack, 25, of 271 Second avenue, were treated for minor injuries by Dr. Charles A. Quinn of Phoenixia.

Corporal Ray Dunn of the state police reported that Mazdin was driving west on High street in the village of Phoenixia and failed to negotiate a curve, striking and breaking an electric power pole.

The automobile, which hit the pole head-on, was badly damaged, Dunn reported.

High tension wires, severed by the accident, dropped to the ground and started a small grass

Inhabitants of Seoul started south again for the third time in a year when the huge Communist attack on the city threatened. That threat now crushed by the victory of U.N. armed forces, many of these refugees have turned back in the direction of the home city, hoping to at last settle down. Farm Laborer, 38 Dies of Suffocation

David Fleming, 38, a farm laborer, died of suffocation when the bedding caught fire in his one-room cabin on the Paul Maxwell farm on Lattintown road, town of Marlborough, about midnight last night, Coroner Ernest A. Kelly and state police reported.

Fleming's body was discovered by other workers about 1 a. m. today when they smelled smoke coming from his cabin, the coroner said.

Investigation by Coroner Kelly and Trooper John Metzger of the state police BCI resulted in a belief that the fire started accidentally from a cigarette which Fleming apparently was smoking in bed.

A Vassar Hospital ambulance was summoned, but Fleming was pronounced dead prior to his removal to the hospital. The body was taken to the J. Perry Woolsey Funeral Home, Milton, who will make the funeral arrangements. Fleming, a winter resident of Clinton, N. C., had been employed on farms in the Milton area the past seven years.

The Red Cross reported the heaviest property damage apparently was on Samar Island.

MOTHERS' DAY
Old fashioned lady in wrapper and shawl
Years were the years that I like to recall
Years that were patterned in pleasing design
Woven where boyhood's adventures were mine
Old fashioned lady... through many a day
Mothers like you hadn't even a day
Playing the queen... living colorful hours
Honored by loved ones and laden with flowers
Old fashioned lady... how much have you missed
Living when "Mothers' Day" didn't exist?
Were you concerned in your era of peace
Searching for praises we didn't increase?
Glorified motherhood all through the year
Calls for a message all nations must hear
Peace upon earth is the lasting bouquet
Mothers of men are concerned with today
Now is the time to establish a plan
Guarding the dignity given to man
Shaping tomorrow so peaceful and fair
We'll find them inviting... for mothers to share.

her first public appearance as queen, driving the seven miles to Abidin Palace past more than 1,000,000 of her cheering new subjects.

At the palace the white-robed queen, her head encircled with diamonds, stood with her royal husband at an exclusive tea party, receiving several hundred prominent guests. All of them were women except male members of the royal family and the Ismaili Moslem sect's fabulously wealthy spiritual ruler, the Aga Khan.

As queen, Nourmahal will make public appearances only at functions for women. During the day holiday parades and processions poured through Cairo's streets, beneath special archways. Airplanes in formation roared overhead. The capital last night blazed with lights and fireworks. Throughout the country villagers fired shotguns and danced in the streets. The couple reportedly will honeymoon at Capri, the resort island off Naples, Italy.

Disrupted Love Affair
Farouk, according to reports published abroad and denied in part by the Egyptian Embassy, won his bride by disrupting her love affair with one of his subjects.

The most widely reported version of the romance, first circulated abroad in December, 1949, was this one: The king first saw Miss Sadek shopping for an engagement ring on Dec. 4 with her then-flame, Zaki Hashem, an economic expert with Egypt's delegation to the United Nations.

Farouk sent his sister, Princess Fawzia, divorced empress of Iran, to press his suit with Nourmahal. Friends said both she and her father, secretary general of the communications ministry until his death last year, were opposed to the match but later were won over. Hashem reportedly was heartbroken. Coming to the United States after the end of his romance, he answered a sad "no comment" to all questions about Nourmahal and the king. Later he returned to Egypt and was named by the king to the power Egyptian Council of State. On April 12 he was married in Cairo to the daughter of the assistant governor of Egypt's National Bank.

Farouk finally announced his engagement to Nourmahal last Feb. 11, his 31st birthday. His first marriage had been to Queen Farida, one of the beauties of the Middle East. He divorced her on Nov. 17, 1948, after she bore him three daughters, but no son. In Moslem countries the crown descends only to males.

Dewey Declines Comment
New York, May 7 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, tanned and cured of a virus infection, arrived last night from a three-day vacation in Bermuda. He told newsmen at La Guardia Field that he had been "out of touch" with current events. Consequently, he said, he had not read Gen. Douglas MacArthur's testimony before the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees nor the report by the U. S. Senate Crime Investigating Committee. He declined comment on these subjects.

Three Are Blamed For Strand Blaze

Origin of a fire on the property to the rear of 61 East Strand last week was traced to three young boys, authorities said today. It was the second downtown fire recently attributed to youngsters.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy said he had asked store keepers of the area to use discretion in the sale of matches to youngsters and said he would like this policy followed in all city stores.

Two of the boys involved in the East Strand fire were six years old and the other five, and the other fire in the same area on April 28 was traced to another group of small boys. The fire May 1, was started in an old mattress on which a wooden crate had been placed. The boys went to a roof to watch the firemen arrive, after the fire was set, the chief said. The origin of both fires were traced through the efforts of Detective Clarence Brophy and members of the police department.

Firemen were called at 9:51 p. m. Saturday to a house owned by Rev. J. E. Washington, 248 Catherine street, where an oil unit was out of adjustment.

New 1,000 Bed VA Hospital Dedicated

Albany's new 1,000-bed Veterans Administration hospital was dedicated with simple ceremonies Sunday, with about 1,500 persons in attendance. Among the guests present from this county were Thomas Bohan of Ulster Park, state department vice-commander of the National Legion, and Alderman-at-Large Joseph Kelly of Kingston.

In the dedication address, Carl R. Gray, Jr., administrator of Veterans Affairs, said the new hospital will provide the "very best medical care in the world" for those admitted to the institution. He was introduced by Mayor Erastus Corning of Albany. Response to the dedicatory address was given by William W. Fellows, M.D., manager of the hospital. Vice Admiral Joel T. Boone, chief medical director, also spoke.

Clergy participating in the program were the Most Rev. Edmund F. Gibbons, D.D., Catholic Bishop of Albany; Rabbi Samuel Wolk of Congregation Beth Emeth, and the Very Rev. H. Boardman Jones, dean of All Saints' Cathedral. Among the guests were former Lt. Gov. Joe R. Hanley and Mrs. Hanley.

CC Directors to Meet

The Board of Directors of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce will meet at 7:30 p. m., Tuesday at the Governor Clinton Hotel. In making this announcement today President Lawrence J. MacAvary requested the attendance. "The meeting has been called early to enable directors with other engagements to still keep their later appointments," MacAvary said. The Chamber office also announced the receipt of 166 memberships to date for the fiscal year starting May 1. This is a substantial increase over the same date a year ago and includes 12 new memberships. J. Ellis Briggs, chairman of the membership planning committee, stated today that he is confident that the goal of 200 memberships will be reached this year.

Tax Liens Filed

New York, May 7 (AP)—Federal tax liens totaling $53,532 against band leader Xavier Cugat and his wife, Lorraine, were filed here today. The liens stated the musician was in arrears for $24,518 for 1948, $21,998 for 1949 and $6,014 for 1950. The liens were filed in the city register's office by R. A. Riddell, internal revenue collector for the 6th federal district in California. The liens listed Cugat's address as 470 North Layton Way, Los Angeles.

Symington left NSRB to take over as one-man administrator of the reorganized Reconstruction Finance Corp.

would speak the president's case. Russell said the committees could work only in the morning hours today because of an afternoon vote on a farm labor bill.

MacArthur argued that a stalemate in Korea—or the "appeasement" of which he expressed fear—would look to Soviet Russia like a sign of western weakness.

'Already Underway'

"The initiatory action of your potential enemy is already underway," he said at one point. "I believe if you don't meet it in Korea you are doomed to destruction. I believe it is already started, and if you let it grow and increase by the enemy, you will get engulfed."

During the Communist aggression in Korea to a halt, he plugged again for his strategy: air operations over Manchuria, a blockade of China and use of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist troops.

One probable line of administration counter-attack appeared likely to be that MacArthur, after 14 years in the Pacific, can't see the broader picture.

Senator McMahon (D-Conn.), an administration supporter, tried to draw out MacArthur several times into wider policy discussion. To counter McMahon's adequacy of defenses to withstand an attack on western Europe, he got this reply from MacArthur:

"I have asked you several times not to involve me in anything except my own area. My concepts of global defense are not what I am here to testify on. I don't pretend to be an authority on these things. . . . The joint chiefs of staff or others here are the ones to answer that query, not me."

New Controversy Ahead

MacArthur's contention that there was nothing in his record as a Pacific commander to justify his ouster seemed likely to stir up new controversy.

He told the committee Saturday that "I do not know why I am recalled." He said he had carried out every given order given him, even if he didn't agree with the policy behind it. Then he said: "It must have been based upon what they had in mind for the future. It could not possibly have been based upon anything in the past."

He added that the reasons President Truman gave for his dismissal seemed to be a direct challenge to the President and, indirectly, to Marshall.

MacArthur also testified he did not attribute to Secretary Acheson any of the responsibility for his firing. The State Department said Saturday night Acheson was one of the advisers who agreed with the President on the action.

Marshall Says . . .

and military policy of the United States. Several senators questioned MacArthur about the propriety of his action when the deposed general was before them. MacArthur said he was against any "gag" year starting May 1. This is a permitted order under his personal command to communicate directly with members of Congress even if the officers knew their words might be used in public debate.

MacArthur's discharge was blamed in large part on a letter he wrote Rep. Martin (R-Mass.), endorsing the latter's view for use of Chinese Nationalist troops against the Chinese Reds.

Marshall told the senators: "It became apparent that General MacArthur had grown so far out of sympathy with the established policy of the United States that there was doubt as to whether he could any longer be permitted to exercise the authority in making decisions that normal command functions would assign to a theater commander. In this situation, there was no other recourse but to relieve him."

Split Threatens

Tehran, Iran, May 7 (AP)—Iran's new government was threatened today by a split with Fedayan Islam, the fanatical secret Moslem order whose assassination tactics sparked the nationalization drive that brought Premier F. Mossadegh to power. Mossadegh received an overwhelming vote of confidence in Parliament yesterday, from 99 out of 102 deputies present in the Majlis (lower house).

Kirk Makes Call

Moscow, May 7 (AP)—U. S. Ambassador Alan G. Kirk called on Deputy Foreign Minister Alexander G. Gombomolov at noon today at the latter's request. (There was no immediate hint as to the reason for the visit, but usually such a call heralds the delivery of a new diplomatic note. Recent dispatches have indicated that Bogomolov is a specialist in Far Eastern affairs.)

Financial and Commercial

New York, May 7 (AP)—The stock market slipped into lower ground today but there was only a fair amount of selling.

There were some drops of around $1 but for the most part the losses were confined to small fractions.

Rail stocks were among those which showed the largest losses with Santa Fe off more than $2 at one time. Southern Railway was down as much as $1 at one point and Chesapeake and Ohio and Southern Pacific were off fractionally.

New York Central and Pennsylvania held steady and at Washington, the Association of American Railroads reported class 1 lines showed very good first quarter earnings compared with a year ago.

Most traders viewed the losses as nothing more than a bit of profit taking after recent sharp advances and saw nothing of decisive significance in the easiness.

Farm Laborer, 38 Dies of Suffocation

David Fleming, 38, a farm laborer, died of suffocation when the bedding caught fire in his one-room cabin on the Paul Maxwell farm on Lattintown road, town of Marlborough, about midnight last night, Coroner Ernest A. Kelly and state police reported.

Fleming's body was discovered by other workers about 1 a. m. today when they smelled smoke coming from his cabin, the coroner said.

Investigation by Coroner Kelly and Trooper John Metzger of the state police BCI resulted in a belief that the fire started accidentally from a cigarette which Fleming apparently was smoking in bed.

A Vassar Hospital ambulance was summoned, but Fleming was pronounced dead prior to his removal to the hospital. The body was taken to the J. Perry Woolf funeral home, Milton, who will make the funeral arrangements. Fleming, a winter resident of Clinton, N. C., had been employed on farms in the Milton area the past seven years.

Precious Gifts . . .

her first public appearance as queen, driving the seven miles to Abidin Palace past more than 1,000,000 of her cheering new subjects.

At the palace the white-robed queen, her head encircled with diamonds, stood with her royal husband at an exclusive tea party, receiving several hundred prominent guests. All of them were women except male members of the royal family and the Ismaili Moslem sect's fabulously wealthy spiritual ruler, the Aga Khan.

As queen, Nariman will make public appearances only at functions for women.

During the day holiday parades and processions poured through Cairo's streets, beneath special archways. Airplanes in formation roared overhead. The capital last night blazed with lights and fireworks.

Throughout the country villagers fired shotguns and danced in the streets.

The couple reportedly will honeymoon at Capri, the resort island off Naples, Italy.

Disrupted Love Affair
Farouk, according to reports published abroad and denied in part by the Egyptian Embassy, won his bride by disrupting her love affair with one of his subjects.

The most widely reported version of the romance, first circulated abroad in December, 1949, was this one:

The king first saw Miss Sadek shopping for an engagement ring on Dec. 4 with her then-fiance, Zaki Hashem, an economic expert with Egypt's delegation to the United Nations.

Farouk sent his sister, Princess Farzia, divorced empress of Iran, to press his suit with Nariman. Friends said both she and her father, secretary general of the communications ministry until his death last year, were opposed to the match but later were won over.

Hashem reportedly was heartbroken. Coming to the United States after the end of his romance, he answered a sad "no comment" to all questions about Nariman and the king. Later he returned to Egypt and was named by the king to the post of Egyptian Council of State. On April 12 he was married in Cairo to the daughter of the assistant governor of Egypt's National Bank.

Farouk finally announced his engagement to Nariman last Feb. 11, his 31st birthday. His first marriage had been to Queen Farida, one of the beauties of the Middle East. He divorced her on Nov. 17, 1948, after she bore him three daughters, but no son. In Moslem countries the crown descends only to males.

Dewey Declines Comment

New York, May 7 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, tanned and cured of a virus infection, arrived last night from a three-week vacation in Bermuda. He told newsmen at La Guardia Field that he had been "out of touch" with current events. Consequently, he said, he had not read Gen. Douglas MacArthur's testimony before the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees nor the report by the U. S. Senate Crime Investigating Committee. He declined comment on these subjects.

Three Are Blamed For Strand Blaze

Origin of a fire on the property to the rear of 61 East Strand last week was traced to three young boys, authorities said today. It was the second downtown fire recently attributed to youngsters.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy said he had asked store keepers of the area to use discretion in the sale of matches to youngsters and said he would like this policy followed in all city stores.

Two of the boys involved in the East Strand fire were six years old and the other five, and the other fire in the same area on April 28 was traced to another group of small boys.

The fire May 1, was started in an old mattress on which a wooden crate had been placed. The boys went to a roof to watch the firemen arrive, after the fire was set, the chief said. The origin of both fires were traced through the efforts of Detective Clarence Brophy and members of the police department.

Firemen were called at 9:51 p. m. Saturday to a house owned by the Rev. W. R. Washington, 248 Catherine street, where an oil unit was out of adjustment.

He was introduced by Mayor Ernest C. Cornish of Albany. Response to the dedicatory address was given by William W. Fellows, M.D., manager of the hospital. Vice Admiral Joel T. MacArthur Stand . . .

would speak the president's case. Russell said the committees could work only in the morning hours today because of an afternoon vote on a farm labor bill.

MacArthur argued that a stalemate in Korea—or the "appeasement" of which he expressed fear—would look to Soviet Russia like a sign of western weakness.

'Already Underway'
"The initiatory action of your potential enemy is already underway," he said at one point. "I believe if you don't meet it in Korea you are doomed to destruction. I believe it is already started, and if you let it grow and increase by the enemy, you will get engulfed."

To bring the Communist aggression in Korea to a halt, he plugged again for his strategy: air operations over Manchuria, a blockade of China and use of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist troops.

One probable line of administration counter-attack appeared likely to be that MacArthur, after 14 years in the Pacific, can't see the broader picture.

Senator McMahon (D-Conn.), an administration supporter, tried to draw out MacArthur several times into wider policy discussion. To one question about the adequacy of defenses to withstand an attack on western Europe, he got this reply from MacArthur:

"I have asked you several times not to involve me in anything except my own area. My concepts of global defense are not what I am here to testify on. I don't pretend to be an authority on these things. The joint chiefs of staff or others here are the ones to answer that query, not me."

McMahon pretty well let it go at that.

New Controversy Ahead
MacArthur's contention that there was nothing in his record as Pacific commander to justify his ouster seemed likely to stir up new controversy.

He told the committee Saturday that "I do not know why I was recalled." He said he had carried out every given order given him, even if he didn't agree with the policy behind it. Then he said:

"It must have been based upon what they had in mind for the future. It could not possibly have been based upon anything in the past."

He added that the reasons President Truman gave for his dismissal "were not valid"—a direct challenge to the President and, indirectly, to the committee.

MacArthur also testified he did not attribute to Secretary Acheson any of the responsibility for his firing. The State Department said Saturday night Acheson was one of the advisers who agreed with the President on the action.

Marshall Says . . .

and military policy of the United States.

Several senators questioned MacArthur about the propriety of his action when the deposed general was before them. MacArthur said he was against any "gag" rule. He also said he would have permitted officers under his personal command to communicate directly with members of Congress even if the officers knew their words might be used in public debate.

MacArthur's discharge was blamed in large part on a letter he wrote Rep. Martin (R-Mass.), endorsing the latter's view for use of Chinese Nationalist troops against the Chinese Reds.

Marshall told the senators: "It became apparent that General MacArthur had grown so far out of sympathy with the established policies of the United States that there was doubt as to whether he could any longer be permitted to exercise the authority in making decisions that normal command functions would assign to a theater commander. In this situation, there was no other recourse but to relieve him."

Financial and Commercial

New York, May 7 (AP)—The stock market slipped into lower ground today but there was only a fair amount of selling.

There were some drops of around $1 but for the most part the losses were confined to small fractions.

Rail stocks were among those which showed the largest losses with Santa Fe off more than $2 at one time. Southern Railway was down as much as $1 at one point and Chesapeake and Ohio and Southern Pacific were off fractionally.

New York Central and Pennsylvania held steady and at Washington, the Association of American Railroads reported class 1 lines showed very good first quarter earnings compared with a year ago.

Most traders viewed the losses as nothing more than a bit of profit taking after recent sharp advances and saw nothing of decisive significance in the easiness.

SAUGERTIES NEWS

Saugerties, May 5—Mrs. Helen Farrell was re-elected trustee of School District 17 at the annual meeting held at Veteran. Mrs. Helen Ricks was elected collector and Mrs. Marion Crotty will be clerk.

The Saugerties Cancer Crusade under the direction of Myron Banks and Mrs. Richard Overbagh, has received $348. More donations are expected and several money making projects are planned which should swell the total.

The quick work of the Saugerties fire department saved the building and equipment of Herman Snyder's business on Ulster avenue Thursday morning. The fire is believed to have started from a tank of gas which was being used by workmen in making alterations on the second floor of the building.

Three local members of the Saugerties Lions Club have been awarded attendance pins for their perfect attendance during the past year. Those honored were Ben Fein, Peter Stoly and Joseph Vozdik.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Stewart and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Robke, both of Willowemoc, Pa., were recent guests of friends in this village. A tank of oil paintings have been donated to the cancer fund by Mrs. Evelyn Rightmyer and Mrs. Frances Elliott. They will be disposed of at a later date.

The three local fire departments were called upon to put out a stubborn blaze in a barn owned by Walter Mattes on Russell street and according to Chief Gilmore the building was considered a total loss.

All plans for the coming meeting of the Ulster county fire companies association may be held in this village May 15, have been completed and well over 100 members are expected to attend as guests of the R. A. Snyder Fire Company on Partition street.

THE DEAL THAT FREED VOGELER

When Robert Vogeler stepped down at last on American soil, it ended another chapter in the sordid Communist history of brutality against human beings.

The fascinating details of Vogeler's tale of horror are yet to be told, but its essentials are a familiar story: a few strands of truth are seized upon to lend plausibility to a fantastic fabric of lies. A weird mixture of mental and physical punishment is resorted to until the victim finally "confesses" that the lies are true.

Two things make the Vogeler case different. One is that he is an American, and hence we feel the shock of his ordeal more deeply than we would that of a foreigner. The second is the remarkable effort made by the United States to obtain his release after he'd served 17 months of his 15-year sentence for "espionage" in Hungary.

On the face of it, this country appeared to pay a considerable price for Vogeler's freedom. The State Department agreed to re-open closed Hungarian consulates in New York and Cleveland, to relax travel limits on U. S. tourists in Hungary, to restore Hungarian property held in the U. S. zone of Germany, and to change the wave-length of Voice of America broadcasts from Munich. These broadcasts, beamed to Hungary in the Hungarian language, have been interfering with Hungary's own stations.

Before anyone hastens to charge that all this smacks of appeasement, it should be noted that the closing of consulates and the travel ban were restrictions imposed by the U. S. in specific reprisal for Vogeler's arrest and imprisonment. We simply wiped out the reprisals when he was freed.

But in fact Hungary may not really regain the status quo before the Vogeler case. The State Department, in lifting the travel ban, nevertheless cautions Americans to pay close heed to "conditions" in Hungary before undertaking travel there.

As for the Voice of America change, it may or may not prove a handicap to our propaganda effort in Hungary. We may find it possible to beam broadcasts in from Greece which will accomplish as good results as those from Munich.

The return of Hungarian property stolen by the Nazis and held in the U. S. zone of Germany is a genuine concession. But we stopped short of agreeing to give the Reds the prized Crown of St. Stephen, symbol of Hungarian sovereignty and independence.

So what the Communists gained was not actually so much. Even if they had won more, it still would not have been a one-sided deal. For we gained a human life, the life of a man at the crest of his powers. And to us such a life comes high.

To Americans, the individual is the focus of all life. When we save him, we believe we are saving a bit of everybody's freedom. We will pay a substantial price to make him free and keep him free.

In the Communist world, it's different. A human being is a pawn to be shoved about as it suits the State. He is actually the property of the government. His life isn't worth a kopek.

Robert Vogeler must today be congratulating himself over and over that he was born on the right side of the Iron Curtain, where a single life counts for so much.

Punctuality, oddly, is not always a mark of merit. One of the signs of a successful business is being so rushed that it is two weeks behind in filling orders on its books.

ARTISTRY IN CHILDREN

The belief that all children are artists by nature and will remain so if not forced to conform with patterns established by adults is held by Dr. Agnes Snyder, chairman of the Education Department of Adelphi College. She says children have inherent creative potentialities, and will carry these into their adult lives if not stifled in the early years.

This is probably so. It is hard to avoid adult reaction against the artistic urges of a small youngster with a crayon and an idea

WHAT ABOUT THE KOREANS?

We are constantly being told how many Americans and Chinese are being killed in Korea. But what about the Koreans? How many Koreans have been killed? How many Korean women and children have been killed? How many babies have died of shell, of shock, of starvation?

This war must seem so unbelievable to the Koreans. First, their country is promised its independence. Then they are told that they are being united. Now they know that they are being eternally united in death.

These great men who sit in Kremlin and Pentagon seem to have forgotten altogether that human beings are not lice; that every human creature upon this earth is entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, to say the least.

The monarchs who sit about planning the future treat mankind as though nothing counted but their machines of destruction. General Douglas MacArthur sought to bring that Korean war to a quick end, so that we could get out of that damned spot and bring our sons home.

But the great statesmen, the geniuses of the United Nations and the State Department and Downing street had planned it differently and their plans go awry with each new twist of their immature minds. But people die. That is what is so important—people die. More than 10,000 Americans have been killed in this stalemated war. We do not know how many Chinese have been killed; we do not know how many Koreans have been killed. And they are people, too.

Korea used to be called the hermit kingdom. They kept out of the so-called world and were unbothered. Now, they have been made a major part of the news. The word Korea, appears in headlines. Even children have heard about Seoul and Inchon. But Koreans are being killed and Seoul has become a heap of rubble.

Seoul has been the capital for nearly 600 years but now is a mound of broken stone. Who is so mighty that he can smash other people's worlds without mercy? And who is so all-powerful that he can say that Koreans can be wiped off the face of the earth, but that Chinese Communists may live in a sanctuary and that Soviet Russia is to be worshipped as Baal?

What heathen misery has come over us that we have lost all sense of pity, mercy, compassion; that the innocent are even more punished than the guilty; that homes are destroyed and temples desolated and the world has not even a tear for the wretched people whose only crime has been that they were born in the wrong place!

I sat recently with a group of those very sure men who never doubt that their machinations and tricks will bring them wealth and power. Some of them were of the kind of business men who live on the cupidity of politicians. They know how to arrange things. While they are generally regarded with great favor among the people because of their success, it has become increasingly clear to me over the years that when they sing paens over a public official in uniform, sure as thunder that public official will show up some day later as a crooked politician or swine. As a reporter, I am always suspicious of the masters of the quick buck.

And now they hate General Douglas MacArthur. Whenever one meets these men, they speak badly of MacArthur. They whisper gossip about him. They say, "he got rich in the Philippines." I like to say, "You got rich in New York by selling black market sugar or hot oil." Of what avail is it to give them the lie? They are proud of their lies, just as some Americans are proud of running the China blockade. It is not their sons or grandsons who died because they ran the blockade.

And when their sons are involved, they will know some politicians who will get their jobs for their offspring in Washington for the duration of any war.

These people hate MacArthur because they fear that a moral upsurge might drive the present brood of fixers out of Washington and they will have to make new connections, which they may not be able to do.

Just as they never give Korea a thought, so they actually never give America a thought. They only give the dollar a thought. They are our weakness, for they produce an emptiness in the soul of anyone who listens to their obscene prattle. (Copyright, 1951, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

That Body of Yours

HOW HYSTERIA IS CURED

Some individuals, mostly young women, at times seem to lose control over their acts and emotions. This is called hysteria. In The British Medical Journal, Dr. A. Barham Carter reports the course of a number of patients who showed clear-cut hysterical symptoms. They were treated in a simple manner and were followed four to six years after discharge from hospital. One hundred patients with various hysterical symptoms were selected from 212 consecutive patients entering hospital diagnosed as having hysteria. They were all seen in- or out-patients of two large civilian hospitals from 1939 to 1943. Their symptoms were so easily recognized as hysterical that their progress was readily followed.

Each of the selected patients showed one of the following symptoms: amnesia (loss of memory), aphonia (inability to speak), blindness, fits, paralysis, trembling or vomiting. Progress or lack of progress was judged simply on the presence or absence of the above symptoms after a given time, and if relapses occurred and how often.

The treatment consisted of direct suggestion, indirect suggestion, hypnosis or suggestion while under the effects of drug. Suggestion treatment was followed by a simple but important routine. No one was allowed to ask the patient how the affected part was, and full recovery was accepted as already complete. The patient was then given two or three interviews and his or her story was listened to sympathetically.

All 23 patients with amnesia (loss of memory) recovered their memory within seven days, 18 of them on the second day after half of direct suggestion or mild hypnosis. All 29 patients with aphonia or loss of speech recovered their voices with direct suggestion and without much difficulty. Three patients with blindness were treated with hypnosis; they recovered and are now well and happy. Six patients with hysterical fits were treated by indirect suggestion, no importance being attached to the attacks. With this treatment, attacks became less frequent, two had no further attacks and the attacks were replaced by blackouts, dizziness and fainting in the other four.

Of 23 patients with paralysis, 15 recovered immediately under hypnosis or thiopentone. All 10 patients with hysterical tremor recovered completely and 5 of 6 with hysterical vomiting recovered.

As we study the above figures we can easily understand the great need for psychiatrists and why there is such a shortage of these specialists.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—Of the long list of American military heroes since 1776, the two whose lives are most identical are Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Civil War Gen. George B. McClellan. Both had famous fathers, both ranked high in their classes at West Point, both were official observers of Russian wars, both rowed with the President of the United States and both had the President pay them the honor of making long trips to confer with them near the field of battle.

General McClellan, a Democrat, differed with homely and none-too-popular Abraham Lincoln of Illinois, a Republican. General MacArthur's dispute is with an unpopular Democratic President from Missouri.

Unlike MacArthur, McClellan never differed with Lincoln in public. Also, McClellan was criticized by Lincoln for being overly cautious and refusing to take the offensive, whereas Truman's criticism of MacArthur is over his aggressiveness.

However, both McClellan and MacArthur were candidates for the presidency, and in both cases the real conflict was one of civilian government versus military rule.

McClellan, son of a famous surgeon and grandson of a Revolutionary War general, graduated from West Point second in his class which compares with MacArthur's record average of more than 90. McClellan served as an observer of Russian tactics during the Crimean War in 1855, while MacArthur, accompanied by his father, Lt. Gen. Arthur MacArthur, who was an observer of the Russo-Japanese War in 1905.

McClellan left the army to become chief engineer of the Illinois Central Railroad, returning via the Ohio National Guard after jumping to the rank of major general.

It was in the summer of 1861 that McClellan, barely past 30, was given command of the demoralized Union forces when retreating almost into Washington. A few months later Lincoln, John Hay and Secretary of State Seward walked to General McClellan's house in Washington for a conference and were snubbed by him.

As told by Hay in his diary: "We had waited about an hour when McClellan came in and, without paying any particular attention to the porter who told him the President was waiting to see him, went upstairs, passing the door where the President and the secretary of state were seated. They waited about half an hour and sent once more a servant to tell the general they were there and the answer coolly came that the general had gone to bed."

Five months passed, and as the public became impatient with the length of the war (as the public is today with the length of the Korean War) Lincoln, in March 1862, relieved McClellan as commander-in-chief but retained him as commander of the army of the Potomac.

Continuing to thumb his nose at Washington, McClellan telegraphed Secretary of War Stanton on June 28: "If I save this army now I tell you plainly that I owe no thanks to you or any other person in Washington. You have done your best to sacrifice this army."

No ordinary subordinate would have dared insult the secretary of war and get away with it. However, Lincoln took it—for the time being. Just as Truman for some time took MacArthur's many public statements going over the President's head on foreign policy.

Lincoln even took a carriage drive out to see McClellan at his headquarters on the James river, at which McClellan handed him a letter caustically criticizing the Lincoln administration.

It was shortly after this visit, however, in the summer of 1862, that Lincoln abruptly relieved McClellan ever of his command of the Army of the Potomac, only to reinstate him later in the same summer.

"Pope is licked and McClellan has the diarrhoea," Lincoln wrote at that time, Aug. 31, 1862. "What shall I do. The bottom is out of the tub. The bottom is out of the tub."

Yet two days later Lincoln called on McClellan personally and asked him as a special favor to resume command.

McClellan at that time was riding the crest of the wave, was deluged with mail not unlike MacArthur's today asking him to take over the government and save the nation. He did an excellent job of reorganizing Union forces, but rowed constantly with Washington over failure to get supplies, just as MacArthur demanded more reinforcements in Korea. After many protests, McClellan, then at Harpers Ferry, refused to move until he got more supplies, and, to try to patch matters up, Lincoln took another long trip to visit him in the field.

Later McClellan's constant nagging got on Lincoln's nerves, for he sent McClellan a caustic telegram.

"I have just received your dispatch about sore tongued and fatigued horses," Lincoln wired. "Will you pardon me for asking what the horses of your army have done since the battle of Antietam that fatigue anything?"

McClellan's final dismissal also came late at night, just as did MacArthur's. His army had moved across the Potomac when, around midnight Nov. 7, 1950, a message arrived from Washington. McClellan opened the message and passed it to General Burnside with the comment: "Well, Burnside, you are to command the army."

The war still had more than two years to go, and McClellan, reduced to civilian life, entered politics. In August 1864, he was unanimously nominated Democratic candidate for president which forced Lincoln, an astute politician, to overlook his party leaders and pick Andrew Jackson, a Democrat, as his vice-presidential running mate.

The country was tired of war, just as today. The Union Army had won no victories, and the conflict had seeped back and forth not far from the Mason-Dixon line, somewhat as the Korean war has seeped across the 38th Parallel.

The Democrats, therefore, were confident of victory. However, Sherman's and Sheridan's victories in the South turned the tide, and McClellan got only 21 electoral votes against Lincoln's 212.

Note—McClellan's views on Secretary of State Seward might also be compared with MacArthur's reported views on Secretary of State Acheson. Writing to his wife in October 1861, McClellan said: "I can't tell you how disgusted I am becoming with these wretched politicians."

Some one asked me, when the Lyric Theatre closed, I think the Stone family would remember as they owned it. I see in the 1912 Express they were advertising, "The Lyric, on The Strand. Only exclusive picture house in the city. Standing for art in its finest form. Pictures steady and clear. Matinees daily, 2:30 and 3:30 and evenings at 7:30." As a youngster, for my nickel, I went in at 7:30 and my father didn't see me again till after the end of the second show around 11:30 when everyone was put "The Perils of Pearlina," "Fatty Arbuckle" and "Charlie Chaplin" the man with the little cane kept us from thinking about school the next morning.

I see C. H. Ettenger, was general manager of the Orpheum in 1912. He was advertising four live acts, and five reels of "best motion pictures, changed every day. Matinee daily at 3 p. m. and admission 5 and 10 cents." Those were the days when the savings banks paid you 4 per cent interest. So advised the Rondout Savings Bank. Their banking hours were from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. Saturdays from 9 a. m. to 12 noon. Remember Dayton's, Murray? He was bookkeeper there then. I knew him years later.

MacArthur Puts Question of Military Policy in Correct Position for Nation

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, May 7—A breath of fresh air has swept across the country in the person of a man who, without bitterness or rancor, rises above the petty and the irrelevant to state honestly his convictions on a highly controversial subject of national policy.

What General MacArthur has accomplished by his three days of testimony and by his ready submission to cross-examination is to put the whole question of our military policy in a true perspective.

Not a word of resentment did he express against the President or anyone else. He brushed aside with a simple statement of facts the many misrepresentations of his position which critics have flung at him.

Nobody can truly claim the right to state General MacArthur's position hereafter unless he has read the 150,000 words of testimony covering the three days of hearings.

This correspondent has read every word of it and is amazed at the number of things that have been written about the General or his proposals which simply are not true. The atmosphere here is so surcharged with political tactics and with the polemics of partisanship that it is refreshing to find a spokesman who, without regard to how his remarks jibe with the speeches of Republican or Democratic leaders, in the "Great Debate" of recent weeks, states with candor and frankness what he really believes.

People may differ as to whether he has the right proposals and whether they should be adopted but, after reading the testimony one is more puzzled than ever that the President should have listened to the sneers of the "Palace Guard" and tried to destroy the reputation of one of the world's greatest soldiers, if not one of her most dynamic statesmen.

The same man who wrote out in longhand on his plane the historic speech to Congress and then read it without glasses, the same man who, though 71 years of age, sat for nine hours a day for three successive days and faced a barrage of questions from the Senate's best interrogators won spontaneous praise from Republicans and Democrats in the committee. The tribute by Senator Russell of Georgia, Democrat, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, at the end of the final session on Saturday, is significant. He said:

"General MacArthur, I wish to state to you that the three days that you have been here with us are without parallel in my legislative experience. I have never seen a man subjected to such a barrage of questions in so many fields and on so many varied subjects. I marvel at your physical endurance. More than that, I have been profoundly impressed by the vastness of your experience, not only as a military administrator of eighty million people."

One wonders how such a man could have been summarily dismissed. One finds nowhere in the official record the slightest evidence that he disobeyed a military command or failed to fulfill the highest traditions of our military service. One wonders if President Truman will not be inspired when he has read all the testimony to show the same courage that he showed when he apologized to the marines for an intemperate remark. For the instinct to redress a wrong is the mark of courage and spiritual understanding. General MacArthur cannot be restored to his command, of course, but the unworthy manner by which he was abruptly relieved can still be expunged from the record by an act of christian atonement. Do You Remember

by SOPHIE MILLER

How many folks remember when the "Kingston Daily Express" was printed and published on Broadway near Union street. I remember, as a youngster watching the mysteries of printing, long before you could read.

Wrote Arthur Cronfield worked there at the time. I had just started to go to school, and anyone working in a newspaper was even above a school teacher to me in those days, and that was something. Having before me Monday, February 28, 1912 paper brings back memories of not only the Express, but also of O'Reilly's blacksmith shop next door. I used to watch the shoeing of horses and still remember that strange aroma of burning hoofs. To me, at that time, blacksmiths were the strongest men in the world. Of course, a motorman on a summer trolley was something wonderful too. There was nothing I liked better than to get on a trolley and stand in front with the motorman, and watch the clang the bell to get everyone off the tracks.

In 1912, Herbert Carl Dry Goods Co., was advertising "Money goes far and fast in the great February clearing sale." Do you think you can stand some of the 1912 prices to compare with today's bargains. You could get night gowns, full length and wide at 35 cents. There was also the famous cleave, the Gladys neck and embroidery, trimmed for 66 cents. A corset cover, embroidery trimmed, beautifully styled for 15 cents. I don't know if you can get a yard of lace for that price now. Muslin drawers, cambric ruffled cluster of five tucks were selling at 16 cents a pair. Muslin skirts, or better known as lace petticoats were then selling for 54 cents. Just think embroidered and lace trimmed, and no doubt long enough to cover the ankles, which took yards and yards of fine muslin. No wonder girls could afford to wear several at one time.

Some one asked me, when the Lyric Theatre closed, I think the Stone family would remember as they owned it. I see in the 1912 Express they were advertising, "The Lyric, on The Strand. Only exclusive picture house in the city. Standing for art in its finest form. Pictures steady and clear. Matinees daily, 2:30 and 3:30 and evenings at 7:30." Questions — Answers

Q—How far can a person see from an airplane flying at heights of 10,000 feet and 20,000 feet?

A—Tests indicate that at 10,000 feet the range of vision is approximately 123 miles, and at 20,000 feet, 173 miles.

Q—Was it Wagner's first wish to be a musician or a poet?

A—To be a poet. Until his fourteenth year, Wagner showed a far greater talent for literature than for music.

Q—Who invented bifocals?

A—Eyeglasses known as bifocals were invented by Benjamin Franklin, who, annoyed at having to carry two pairs of glasses had one pair split in half, each eye having two different lenses.

Q—Where did the square dance originate?

A—Square dance is the name popularly applied to any type of American folk dance in which an even number of couples take part. Most of these were adaptations of 17th century English country dances.

Q—How many moons does Saturn have?

A—Nine are known with certainty. In addition W. H. Pickering announced in 1905 that he had discovered a tenth, which he named Themis. However, this has never been confirmed and most astronomy textbooks now omit Themis from the list.

CCA Opens Annual Drive With Recital
Meeting on Sunday

An "exceptionally talented" 12-year-old pianist, who his father admitted, has lost his heart to the New York Yankees, played with veteran aplomb Sunday afternoon before 45 workers and members of the executive committee of the Kingston Community Concerts Association, meeting at the Governor Clinton Hotel to open the association's annual membership campaign.

The pianist, Warren Bernhardt, is the son of Lawrence Bernhardt, eastern manager of the Community Concerts Association, who, with his wife, accompanied young Warren to Kingston.

The boy's program included the first movement of Sonata No. 1 in F minor, Beethoven; Scenes from Childhood, Schumann; Etude in F minor, Opus 10, Chopin; Venetian Boat Song and Rondo Capriccioso, Mendelssohn. Encore selections were The Cuckoo, Daquin, and Debussy's General Lavine Prelude.

Also present at the campaign's opening was Miss Margery Lee of the association's New York office, who spoke briefly of her work in several other communities this year, and stressed the Kingston association's fortune in not needing to raise membership fees. Mr. Bernhardt, who also spoke, reminded members of some of the difficulties they will meet this season.

Presiding at the meeting was N. LeVan Haver, president, who said that the association's third program for the '51-'52 season will be announced later in the week. Already signed for appearances next year are the Indianapolis Symphony, and Cesare Siepi, leading bass of the Metropolitan Opera.

The association is open to all, and membership may be obtained from either the workers or at headquarters in the Governor Clinton Hotel.

MOTHERS' CLOTHES AT WEDDING

A bridegroom's mother is perplexed: "Isn't it wrong to wear an ankle-length dress in the morning? Mrs. X, the mother of my son's bride-to-be, has sent word to me that she is going to wear a dress of this length at the wedding and thought I might like to wear something similar since we are to receive together on a wide stretch of lawn. I would never have dreamed of wearing a long dress at a morning hour."

Mrs. X is quite right in believing it customary for the mothers of the bride and groom to wear long skirts no matter what the time of the day. She is also right in realizing that a long view situation really does exact that they wear skirts of the same length.

Flowers to Bereaved

Dear Mrs. Post: A neighbor's mother is very ill in a distant city. In the event she does not recover, my friend will not be able to go to the funeral as she is expecting a baby any day. Should I send flowers to the funeral (I don't know the mother) or to my neighbor? What would the card say?

Answer: My advice is that you send the flowers to your neighbor, with a card on which you write: "With deepest sympathy."

Thanking People for Gifts
Dear Mrs. Post: Please set me straight about thanking people for gifts! If someone gives me a gift in person and I thank her immediately, is it then necessary to write her a thank-you note?

Answer: Further thanks are unnecessary if the gift is given you at a time when you can open and really look at the present with her. But if you had no chance to open it, you should then either write or telephone something appreciative about its beauty or utility.

"Okay"

Dear Mrs. Post: My son and I disagree on the good taste of the expression "Okay." He thinks it is entirely acceptable whereas I think it slang and should be avoided.

Answer: Although heard every day in the world of sports and business as well as in that of early youth, it certainly is not in the vocabulary of the fastidious.

How should an invitation for a wedding anniversary be worded and by whom should it be sent? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. However suggestions for the invitation and entertainment are included in leaflet E-7. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to her in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. BEN BASENKO

Ben Basenko, who left a successful stage career in 1936 to accept an offer from the National Jewish Workers Alliance to go on a concert tour through the United States and Canada, will share honors with violinist Julius Schulman Thursday night at a celebration of the third anniversary of the State of Israel in Temple Emanuel at 8 p. m.

His repertoire consists of numerous monologues on American Jewish life; satires and parodies on Jewish life of the past generation; Palestinian songs of the shepherd, the Yemenite, and the Cholutz; Jewish folk songs of the Cheder, the street singer, and the love-lorn tailor boy.

Mr. Basenko, who the New York Herald Tribune has called "a gifted and most versatile artist" was also a member of the American group of the Moscow Habimah in 1930, and appeared with them in The Dybbuk, and The Juggler.

Give Mother:- You

By FRANK TRIPP

Mother's Day stands among all of the special days of the calendar as the one which every human can hallow and observe; without disagreement racially, politically or religiously. Yet there are people who ignore it, who ignore their mother.

Mother is a universal institution. No one anywhere could have come into existence without a mother. Many of us would not have survived but for mother.

Most of us would not have been what we are but for mother. Others would have been better men if they had heeded mother.

No man can repay the debt he owes the woman who brought him into the world, nursed him, watched over him, reared him, never ceased to love and protect him. When all the world desert us, mother is our haven and retreat.

Great men like Lincoln humbly say, "All that I am I owe to my mother." Thoughtful men trek back to mother's side every chance. Troubled men seek mother's knee again to pray as she taught them. Hunted men sneak to mother's house to hide. Because mother is the eternal friend.

THE WORD MOTHER is the grandest word we speak and the woman who bears it possesses something no other being knows—the true meaning of love. No sacrifice is too great, no task too tiring, no disappointment or grief for our acts severe enough to turn mother against us.

Yet we abuse mother. We impose upon her, we wet her cheeks with tears for our thoughtlessness. We wring her heart with our neglect. For most of all mother wants us—to be with us.

Mother knows, as no one else, that time must come when she must part with her greatest joy in life, her children. She is proud to see them go forth to live of their own, to be mothers and fathers themselves; to assume in their turn the estate of parenthood.

Still never does mother truly give us up or think of us as adult but children. No matter how old, how famed, how low we get, mother's thoughts of us are of our childhood, of our pranks, our curls, our dirty hands.

I WISH I HAD a mother with whom I could spend next Sunday. I'd fly to the end of the earth to be with her. But mother has gone beyond my reach these many years. It had to happen to make me understand. It seemed to me that mother would always be.

I thought through her life that I did everything I could for mother, that there was nothing she could want. How wrong I was. I had to feel the pang myself to know that the thing she wanted most I failed to give as much as I might. She wanted me.

I was busy, had many things to do. I had a family of my own. I couldn't spend much time with mother. What a fool I was. I found time for clubs, for trips, for friends who have betrayed me. I found time to earn dollars with which I sought to repay mother with comfort and plenty.

Plenty, yes; but comfort, no; for the comfort mother most sought was the chance to be with me. "Come up to supper tonight," she'd phone.

"I'm sorry, mother, I can't. I've got to go to a dinner—so and so," I'd say.

"Oh, I'm so disappointed," she'd reply. "I bought oysters and was going to make a stew the way you and Pop liked it—hope you have a good time."

TODAY, WHEN IT'S too late, I'd forego a feast with kings to sit at the red-spiced kitchen table in the little house she always kept; take off my coat, crush crackers in the stew—and visit with my mother.

Oh, you for whom it is not too late, stop thinking that you can repay your mother with security and ease. Find out in time that what mother wants is you. She wants it most of anything in the world.

One does not need wealth with which to repay mother. Just give her more of that time you spend with others. Remember her on Mother's Day, of course; then remember her every day. Be with her all you can and you'll best repay the debt you owe to mother.

Jacoby on Canasta

HOW TO END HAND QUICKLY

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"I don't believe in luck," writes an Austin, Tex., correspondent, "especially when that luck continues for a very long time. My next-door neighbor and his wife keep winning, so I know they must be better than we are. But I can't discover the secret of their success."

Here's what happens in about one deal out of every three. My wife and I get the first discard pile and get down with a few nice-looking melds. It looks as though we ought to make at least one canasta very quickly and perhaps run up a really big score.

Suddenly the hand collapses. One of our friendly enemies puts down a meld, and in one or two more plays the hand is over. Their hands always seem to match, and one of them is able to meld out before we can pile up a decent score.

This doesn't happen when they get the first discard pile. My wife and I often have to sit through a long drawn-out hand without being able to meld out. Meanwhile the neighbors score a bushful.

What's the answer? How do they do it?

My correspondent is the one card player in a thousand who doesn't complain about luck when he is being outplayed. The secret is fairly simple, and even an average player can make use of it.

There are only eleven possible ranks that your side can meld in—from the aces down to the fours. You are not likely to make a canasta in any rank melded by the enemy. You are not likely to make a canasta in any rank that your partner discards (unless you have control of the discard pile).

At the beginning of a hand, you check off the ranks that are improbable. Your partner discards jacks, nines, and sevens, let us say. You have a very bad hand and cannot put up any serious fight for the discard pile. All right—give up. Discard exactly what your partner has thrown. This will often give up the pile.

You and your partner will still have twenty-two cards between you—and neither one of you has any jacks, nines, or sevens. Perhaps you also discard another rank. Do you see what is bound to happen?

The partnership hands must accumulate more and more cards in the same few ranks. As soon as one player makes a meld, the

Jacoby on Canasta

HOW TO END HAND QUICKLY

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"I don't believe in luck," writes an Austin, Tex., correspondent, "especially when that luck continues for a very long time. My next-door neighbor and his wife keep winning, so I know they must be better than we are. But I can't discover the secret of their success."

Here's what happens in about one deal out of every three. My wife and I get the first discard pile and get down with a few nice-looking melds. It looks as though we ought to make at least one canasta very quickly and perhaps run up a really big score.

Suddenly the hand collapses. One of our friendly enemies puts down a meld, and in one or two more plays the hand is over. Their hands always seem to match, and one of them is able to meld out before we can pile up a decent score.

"This doesn't happen when they get the first discard pile. My wife and I often have to sit through a long drawn-out hand without being able to meld out. Meanwhile the neighbors score a bushyhead."

What's the answer? How do they do it?

My correspondent is the one card player in a thousand who doesn't complain about luck when he is being outplayed. The secret is fairly simple, and even an average player can make use of it.

There are only eleven possible ranks that your side can meld in—from the aces down to the fours. You are not likely to make a canasta in any rank melded by the enemy. You are not likely to make a canasta in any rank that your partner discards (unless you have control of the discard pile).

At the beginning of a hand, you check off the ranks that are improbable. Your partner discards jacks, nines, and sevens, let us say. You have a very bad hand and cannot put up any serious fight for the discard pile. All right—give up. Discard exactly what your partner has thrown. This will often give up the pile.

You and your partner will still have twenty-two cards between you—and neither one of you has any jacks, nines, or sevens. Perhaps you also discard another rank. Do you see what is bound to happen?

The partnership hands must accumulate more and more cards in the same few ranks. As soon as one player makes a meld, the partner can match it to complete a canasta. The whole hand can usually be ended in one or two more plays.

Take a smart tip from Jacoby: The player who knows the rules cold plays a much better game than the one who's never quite sure. You'll know the answers if you write in for the authoritative 1951 INTERNATIONAL LAWS OF CANASTA. Colonials Drub Gloversville, 19-9, for First Victory of Season

Glovers Cop Saturday Tomson and McCormick Opening Day Two Hurlers

Game in Ninth, 6-2

Our cellar-ridden Colonials and the equally harassed Gloversville-Johnstown Glovers found solace and comfort in each other in the week-end action at municipal stadium.

The Colonials committed nine errors to hand the Glovers a 6-5 victory before 435 fans Saturday night. Last night, Manager Hank Camelli's lineup broke loose with a 19-run barrage to crash the win column for the first time in six starts, 19 to 9, in a three-hour marathon marred by nine Gloversville miscues.

The schedule resumes tonight when Clarence "Buck" Etchison, one-time North Atlantic League manager and home run slugger, leads the Rome Colonials into the stadium for a single engagement at 8 p. m. Another single is scheduled Tuesday.

A mere 225 of the faithful sat in on the bawdy proceedings last night, for a week-end aggregate of 660. That's hardly enough to keep baby in shoes and other necessities of life.

Where Is Gus Fan?
Mr. Baseball Fan of Kingston is conspicuous by his absence in the cavernous emptiness of municipal stadium these days. Too many fans are staying away in droves and passing judgment in absentia. This hardly seems like the proper community spirit and represents a somewhat shabby treatment of a baseball team that was supposed to be a "community team" in every respect.

Manager Hank Camelli has the gang hustling and fighting, even if they are losing, and it would be interesting to see what they could do before a decent assemblage some night at the stadium.

The youngsters who toil and fumble in the original crudity of Class C baseball make a lot of mistakes. There are errors galore, plenty bases on balls and every other factor that makes up a wild and woolly contest. But in spite of these indiscretions, they deserve a better shake at the turn of the season. At least through the early stages of the campaign.

Ayers Victim
The ninth inning yips cost Charlie Ayers a beautifully pitched four-hitter Saturday night, after the Camellies had moved ahead 4-2 in the very first inning.

Get Fast Start
A one-out triple by Pete Caniglia and Tom Luce, the third bauble of the contest decided the game, 6 to 5 in favor of the visitors. The Colonials staged a mild threat in the bottom of the ninth when Jack Ormiston, who is now appearing in the role of outfielder-pitcher, doubled to right with two outs. But Al Greene fouled out to the third baseman and the fifth straight Colonial loss had been written into the record books.

It was a different story Sunday night and the shoe was on the other foot. At the end of three innings, Kingston led 12-4 behind Bob Wenning, newest addition to the hurling corps. They achieved this bulge on a mere half dozen hits. The Glovers obliged with five errors, several walks and passed balls.

Wenning pitched until the sixth when a base clearing triple by MacMillan dictated his removal. Al Thomas came on and stopped the Glovers cold for the rest of the distance.

Make Four Pitches
The Colonials raked four flingers sent to the firing line by Manager Al Barillari and the righter's batting averages in the first offensive display of the infant season. Joe Niro pounded three singles, while Joel Kern and Jack Harris, a new shortstop from the New York Yankee farm system, stroked two singles.

Runs clattered across in telephone number fashion in last night's rout. Al Greene drilled two across with a first inning single. Walks by Joe Stelmach and Jack Allen plus a trio of singles by Joel Kern, Joe Niro and Jack Ormiston ran up a 7-2 Kingston edge in the second.

Singletons by Stelmach and Harris were the only safeties in a 5-run barrage in the third. The Glovers obliged with five errors. Lou Kramberg's triple to right center highlighted a four-run outburst in the sixth and the Colonials topped off their night's work with three in the eighth. Joe Niro had a single but four walks, a hit batsman and a passed ball were contributory factors.

COLONIAL CAPERS: Ismael Alvarado, the Puerto Rican paw, goes tonight. Stelmach and Kern scored ten runs between them on three hits. Stelmach had his third four-walk game of the season. He also singled and bounced into a DP. Kern reached base five times on two hits, a walk, a hit batsman and two Gloversville errors. Both sparked in the field. Stelmach coming up with two corking stops, while Kern had one. Carl Harris, up from the Yankees looked good at shortstop. Kramberg was back in the cleanup spot. Player-manager Al Barillari made a hasty exit after mulling up three infield plays. He made more moves with his lineup than a checker shark and they all turned out bad. Lou Demus is a formidable battery. He started as a relief pitcher and wound up behind the plate. The Glovers used 16 players, four of them pitchers. After a two-day stand against Rome, the Colonials travel to Amsterdam. Shortstop Tom Luce, who had been playing nice ball up to Saturday night, was badly shaken up on a bang-bang play at second base in the eighth inning and had to be removed from the game. He was pitched last night but Manager Camelli said Luce had not sustained any serious injuries. What would our harassed skipper give for a couple long ball hitters? You ask him. But at least he can smile today. That first one is in the books. The others may come easier.

299 Score Rolled In State Tourney

Elmira, N. Y., May 7 (AP)—One stolid, stubborn pin stole the spotlight during week-end rolling in the 26th annual New York State men's bowling tourney.

That one pin would have been the 300th to fall to run up a perfect score for John Voipe of Manchester. But it didn't fall. Voipe had to settle Saturday night for a 299 that bids fair to be the top individual score of the tourney.

In less frustrating bowling during the fifth of eight week-ends of the tournament, Charles Pozniak of Herkimer saw his week-old 692 score stand to hold the lead for him in the championship singles.

Harold Anderson, Waverly, held on to the handicap singles top spot with 759.

In the all events rolling, Iran Lutenski of Elmira leads the championship division with 1,865. Sam Di Bella of Rome heads the handicap all events bowlers with 1,985.

Team championship honors are held by the VFW Five of Cortland. The quietest rolled 2,980 last week in a Buffalo team. Top Hill Grill number two, leads the handicap team race with 3,187.

Rochester teams still hold the doubles leads. L. Reimer and J. Bloom set a 1,254 mark in the championship division and Franklin Laemlin and Her Ward lead the handicap doubles bowlers with 1,364.

Was Mr. Lockman's Face But Very Red

New York, May 7 (AP)—Connie Ryan, Cincinnati second baseman, added a fresh twist to the old hidden ball trick yesterday against the New York Giants.

In the tenth inning of the first game at the Polo Grounds, the Giants' Whitey Lockman reached second with the potential tying run on a single and a sacrifice.

After the sacrifice play, Ryan returned to the bag and said: "Say, Whitey, would you mind stepping off for a minute. I want to straighten out the bag."

Whitey obliged. Ryan tagged him with the hidden ball.

"Yer out!" yelled the ump. Whitey turned red. The Reds won, 4-3.

From Baseball to Stardom

By JOE REICHLER

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The toast of the baseball world today is Cliff Chambers, a somewhat secluded southpaw pitcher whose only previous claim to fame was his ability to throw a "duster" as expertly as the next.

Chambers made history yesterday when he hurled a no-run, no-hit game, a feat no other Pittsburgh pitcher had been able to accomplish in the city's long tenure in the National League.

The no-hitter was the first fashioned in the majors since Vern Bickford of Boston's Braves did it against Brooklyn in a night game, Aug. 11, 1950.

Chambers, a big blond elbow from Portland, Ore., belied his sub-par lifetime won and lost record of 27-31 with a performance reminiscent of a Carl Hubbell. He handcuffed the Braves, 3-0, in the second game of a double header.

Chambers was wild, walking eight. However, he was deadly in the clutches as only one Boston runner reached third. That was when the no-hitter was in deepest danger. With two out, Bob Elliott sent a long snapper to right center but the fleet-footed Gus Bell made a catch over his head.

Cards Dump Brooks

The surprising St. Louis Cardinals thumped the Dodgers, 11-7, despite a home run with the bases full by Brooklyn's Pee Wee Reese. After blowing a 5-0 lead, the Redbirds bounced back with six in the eighth to overcome a 7-5 Brooklyn edge. The triumph gave the pacesetter Cards a half-game bulge over the Braves.

Jackie Robinson's first error of the season, on a potential ending double play ball, opened the gates for five St. Louis runs in the eighth.

Philadelphia and Chicago split a National League doubleheader. The Phils won the opener, 5-4 and the Cubs took the 10-inning nightcap, 9-7. A two-run double by Granny Hamner featured a four-run uprising in the sixth to give Bubba Church his second Philadelphia win in the opener.

The Cubs pounded Robin Roberts and Bob Miller for 17 hits in the finale. Triples by Woody Burgess and Bob Ramazzotti produced the winning runs in the 10th.

Giants Split

New York's Giants and Cincinnati also divided a twin bill. The Reds won the first, 4-3, on Red Stallcup's 10th inning homer. Bobby Adam's pinch hit double had brought in two Red runs in the ninth to force the overtime.

The Giants, who now have dropped all four overtime tilts, won the second game, 8-5, on Hank Thompson's three-run homer in the first inning.

New York's high-flying Yankees whipped the Tigers, 11-6, in Detroit for their eighth straight victory and increased their American League lead to two games over Cleveland.

Rookie Mickey Mantle led the Yanks' 12-hit assault on five Tiger hurlers with three hits and three runs batted in. Another rookie, right-hander Tom Morgan, gained credit for the victory.

Washington and Cleveland split a doubleheader. Julio Moreno pined off the Indians with an 8-1 seven-hit job to win his first start of the season. Bob Chakales, spurred by a two-run homer by Al Rosen, won a 4-2 rookie duel from Washington's Bob Ross in the second game.

Chicago's White Sox swept two games from the Athletics, 4-1 and 8-3. Ken Holcombe won a five-hitter in the opener. Four Philly hurlers issued 15 walks, within three of the record, to make it easy for Chicago in the second game.

Red Williams' home run in the 10th gave the Boston Red Sox a 5-4 first game victory over the Browns but St. Louis came back to win the second game, 8-2. Eight hit pitching by Al Widmar and a three-run homer by Catcher Sherman Lollar gave the Browns the split.

Colonial Drub Gloversville, 19-9, for First Victory of Season

Glovers Cop Saturday Tomson and McCormick Opening Day Two Hurlers

Game in Ninth, 6-2

Our cellar-ridden Colonials and the equally harassed Gloversville-Johnstown Glovers found solace and comfort in each other in the week-end action at municipal stadium.

The Colonials committed nine errors to hand the Glovers a 6-5 victory before 435 fans Saturday night. Last night, Manager Hank Camelli's lineup broke loose with a 19-run barrage to crash the win column for the first time in six starts, 19 to 9, in a three-hour marathon marred by nine Gloversville miscues.

The schedule resumes tonight when Clarence "Buck" Etchison, one-time North Atlantic League manager and home run slugger, leads the Rome Colonels into the stadium for a single engagement at 8 p. m. Another single is scheduled Tuesday.

A mere 225 of the faithful sat in on the bawdy proceedings last night, for a week-end aggregate of 660. That's hardly enough to keep baby in shoes and other necessities of life.

Where Is Gus Fan?
Mr. Baseball Fan of Kingston is conspicuous by his absence in the cavernous emptiness of municipal stadium these days. Too many fans are staying away in droves and passing judgment in absentia. This hardly seems like the proper community spirit and represents a somewhat shabby treatment of a baseball team that was supposed to be a "community team" in every respect.

Manager Hank Camelli has the gang hustling and fighting, even if they are losing, and it would be interesting to see what they could do before a decent assemblage some night at the stadium.

The youngsters who toil and fumble in the virginal crudity of Class C baseball make a lot of mistakes. There are errors galore, plenty bases on balls and every other factor that makes up a wild and woolly contest. But in spite of these indiscretions, they deserve a better shake at the turnstiles. At least through the early stages of the campaign.

Ayers Victim
The ninth inning yips cost Charlie Ayers a beautifully pitched four-hitter Saturday night, after the Camellis had moved ahead 4-2 in the very first inning.

Get Fast Start
A one-out triple by Pete Caniglia and Tom Luce's third double of the contest decided the game, 6 to 5 in favor of the visitors. The Colonials staged a mild threat in the bottom of the ninth when Jack Ormiston, who is now appearing in the role of outfielder-pitcher, doubled to right with one out. But Al Greene fouled out to the third baseman and the fifth straight Colonial loss had been written into the record books.

It was a different story Sunday night and the shoe was on the other foot. At the end of three innings, Kingston led 12-4 behind Bob Wenning, newest addition to the hurling corps. They achieved this bulge on a mere half dozen hits. The Glovers obliged with five errors, several walks and wounding balls.

When pitched until the sixth when a base clearing triple by MacMillan dictated his removal, Al Thomas came on and stopped the Glovers cold for the rest of the distance.

Rake Four Pitchers
The Colonials raked four flingers sent to the firing line by Manager Al Barillari and fattened their batting averages in the first offensive display of the infant season. Joe Niro pounded three singles, while Joel Kern and Carl Harris, a new shortstop from the New York Yankee farm system, stroked two singles.

Runs clattered across in telephone number fashion in last night's rout. Al Greene drilled two across with a first inning single. Walks by Joe Stelmach and Jack Allen plus a trio of singles by Joel Kern, Joe Niro and Jack Ormiston ran up a 7-2 Kingston edge in the second.

Singletons by Stelmach and Harris were the only safeties in a 5-run barrage in the third. The Glovers obliged with five errors. Lou Kramberg's triple to right center highlighted a four-run outburst in the sixth and the Colonials topped off their night's work with three in the eighth. Joe Niro had a single but four walks, a hit batsman and a passed ball were contributory factors.

COLONIAL CAPERS: Ismael Alvarado, the Puerto Rican southpaw, goes tonight. Stelmach and Kern scored ten runs between them on three hits. Stelmach had his third four-walk game of the season. He also singled and bounced into a DP. Kern reached base five times on two hits, a walk, a hit batsman and two Gloversville errors. Both sparked in the field. Stelmach coming in with two corking stops, while Kern had one. Carl Harris, up from the Yankees looked good at shortstop. Kramberg was back in the cleanup spot. Player-manager Al Barillari made a hasty exit after musing up ten runs in four plays. He made more moves with his lineup than a checker shark and they all turned out bad. Lou Demus is a convertible battery. He started as a relief pitcher and wound up behind the plate. The Glovers used 16 players, four of them pitchers. After a two-day stand against Rome, the Colonials travel to Amsterdam. Shortstop Tom Luce, who had been playing nice ball up to Saturday night, was badly shaken up on a bang-bang play at second base in the eighth inning and had to be removed from the game. He was stung last night but Manager Camelli said Luce had not sustained any serious injuries. What would our harassed skipper give for a couple long ball hitters? You ask him. But at least he can smile today. That first one is in the books. The others may come easier.

299 Score Rolled In State Tourney

Elmira, N. Y., May 7 (AP)—One stolid, stubborn pin stole the spotlight during week-end rolling in the 26th annual New York State men's bowling tourney.

That one pin would have been the 300th to fall to run up a perfect score for John Volpe of Manchester. But it didn't fall. Volpe had to settle Saturday night for a 299 that bids fair to be the top individual score of the tourney.

In less frustrating bowling during the fifth of eight week-ends of the tournament, Charles Pozniak of Herkimer saw his week-end 692 score stand to hold the lead for him in the championship singles.

Harold Anderson, Waverly, held on to the handicap singles top spot with 759.

In the all events rolling, Iran Lutomski of Elmira leads the championship division with 1,865. Sam Di Bella of Rome heads the handicap all events bowlers with 1,985.

Team championship honors are held by the VFW Five of Cortland. The quintet rolled 2,980 last week. A Buffalo team, Top Hill Grill number two, leads the handicap team race with 3,187.

Rochester teams still hold the doubles leads. L. Reimer and J. Bloom set a 1,254 mark in the championship division and Franklin Laemlin and Elmer Ward lead the handicap doubles bowlers with 1,364.

Was Mr. Lockman's Face But Very Red
New York, May 7 (AP)—Connie Ryan, Cincinnati second baseman, added a fresh twist to the old hidden ball trick yesterday against the New York Giants.

In the tenth inning of the first game at the Polo Grounds, the Giants' Whitey Lockman reached second with the potential tying run on a single and a sacrifice.

After the sacrifice play, Ryan returned to the bag and said: "Say, Whitey, would you mind stepping off for a minute. I want to straighten out the bag."

Whitey obliged. Ryan tagged him with the hidden ball.

"Yer out!" yelled the ump. Whitey turned red. The Reds won, 4-3.

From Beanball to Stardom

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
The toast of the baseball world today is Cliff Chambers, a somewhat secluded southpaw pitcher whose only previous claim to fame was his ability to throw a "duster" as expertly as the next.

Chambers made history yesterday when he hurled a no-run, no-hit game, a feat no other Pittsburgh pitcher had been able to accomplish in the city's long tenure in the National League.

The no-hitter was the first fashioned in the majors since Vern Bickford of Boston's Braves did it against Brooklyn in a night game, Aug. 11, 1950.

Chambers, a big blond elbow from Portland, Ore., belied his sub-par lifetime won and lost record of 27-31 with a performance reminiscent of a Carl Hubbell. He handiuffed the Braves, 3-0, in the second game of a double header after Warren Spahn had blanked the Pirates, 6-0, in the opener.

Chambers was wild, walking eight. However, he was deadly in the clutches as only one Boston runner reached third. That was when the no-hitter was in deepest danger. With two out, Bob Elliott sent a long smash to right center but the first-footed Sykes Bell made a catch over his head.

Cards Dump Brooks
The surprising St. Louis Cardinals thumped the Dodgers, 11-7, despite a home run with the bases full by Brooklyn's Pee Wee Reese. After blowing a 5-0 lead, the Redbirds bounced back with six in the eighth to overcome a 7-5 Brooklyn edge. The triumph gave the peacocking Cards a half-game bulge over the Braves.

Jackie Robinson's first error of the season, on a potential inning ending double play ball, opened the gates for five St. Louis runs in the eighth.

Philadelphia and Chicago split a National League doubleheader. The Phils won the opener, 5-4 and the Cubs took the 10-inning nightcap, 9-7. A two-run double by Granny Hamner featured a Stan Disbrow, Poughkeepsie speedster, led a field of drivers to the finish line in the feature event at Rhinebeck Speedway's 1951 opening Saturday night.

As was predicted, the semi-tones are "souped-up" more and faster than ever this year and provided eight races of terrific competition. Action packed throughout, there were numerous spins and crashes which gave a large crowd of nearly 4,000 many unexpected thrills.

Three starts were necessary in the 25 lap main due to cars crashing together in the first laps and blocking the entire track, but when it finally got rolling, an outstanding exhibition of driving skill by top United pilots kept everyone cheering to the end.

Disbrow was in 11th position, "Jokko" Maggaciano back in the 16th spot, Ray Brown in 18th and Chuck Arnold in 19th at the third start. All four took to the outside and started moving ahead the hard way. Every car and driver in this race was equally capable of winning the front money and therefore the entire field stayed close together lap after lap. At the half-way mark the going got even tougher because two other "hot" drivers, popular Larry Shurter and "Sparky" Belmont joined the struggle.

Finally, with only two laps to go, Disbrow, Jokko, and Brown had their chance to fight it out for first place, but Stan held on to his lead and led "Jokko" across the finish line by just a half car length.

The opening races were a very good indication of what stock car racing fans will see in the way of action every Saturday night at Rhinebeck from now until late fall.

Feature summaries: (1st 10) Stan Disbrow, "Jokko" Maggaciano; Ray Brown; Sparky Belmont; Larry Shurter; Hal McCarty; Griffin; J. Wallerton; Chuck Arnold and Herb Goldie.

Cliff Credits Mates For No-Hit Victory
Boston, May 7 (AP)—Southpaw Cliff Chambers of the Pittsburgh Pirates sizzled a 3-0 no-hitter against the Boston Braves yesterday and says he wants to split the credit nine ways—with the team.

Fresh from a bout with the flu, the blond left-hander pitched the newest no-hit of the majors in the second game of a Sunday double-header.

But between slaps on the back he had this to say: "Cooperation never means as much as in a no-hitter. There's nine of us out there. A pitcher isn't the team."

Tennis
Bournemouth, England—Doris Hart of Jacksonville, Fla., won three titles in the English hard courts tennis championships.

Wiesbaden, Germany—Mrs. Margaret Osborne duPont of Wilmington, Del., won three titles in the Wiesbaden international tournament.

Retires From Railroad

George D. Long, left, of 28 West Chester street, gets congratulations from J. A. Simpson, local freight agent, upon completion of 37 years of service with the New York Central Railroad. Happy Girls Are Ones Who Wed, Is Physician's Advice

Los Angeles, May 7 (AP)—Get happy, girls, unless you want to wind up an old maid. Beauty and brains are not enough. Neither is good home cooking.

Dr. H. K. Moore, Arkansas A. and M. College psychologist, has blasted some of the old notions about why Aunt Minnie never married.

Dr. Moore compared 176 wives and 176 spinsters on a list of 104 traits. His findings:

Both groups are about equal in beauty, intelligence and enjoyment of housekeeping.

But the spinsters seldom smile. The study found that the old maids are not a happy group.

Furthermore, the spinster has an unhappy disposition, fears sex and childbirth, and is a self-centered fault-finder who always wants to have her own way.

Dr. Moore's results are published in an article in Family Life, the monthly organ of the American Institute of Family Relations here.

He writes that the spinster's trouble is that they were educated too much for careers instead of for marriage. As a result, the old maid finds it hard to treat men naturally—she is likely either to appear indifferent or over-anxious when men notice her.

The study did not point out whether the spinsters were unhappy and unsmiling because they were spinsters.

How would you like to test your skill as a student? Just look at the North-South cards of today's hand and plan your play to make four hearts. Don't read on until you've made up your own plan.

West leads the queen of spades, and that suit is continued until South ruffs the third round. Now South must set up dummy's diamonds or ruff out his own losing clubs (or both) in order to develop enough tricks.

Since the diamond finesse must be tried, South enters dummy with a club to lead a diamond. The queen holds, and South lays down the ace of diamonds to continue the work of clearing the suit.

When West drops the jack of diamonds South has some warning that the suit may break badly. The time has come to draw trumps, but South cannot afford to finesse. He must take the ace and then the king of hearts.

The next step is to run a diamond in the hope of dropping both of the missing diamonds. This hope fails, so South gets to the dummy with a club to ruff another diamond. Finally South ruffs a club in dummy—and he has ten tricks. East gets the last trick when the queen of hearts.

If you didn't think that way, don't worry too hard about it. Many of the college students muffed it also.

Interested scouts and their parents may receive complete information about the scholarship by contacting Dennis or by writing directly to Col. J. W. Henderson, chairman of the scholarship committee, Culver Military Academy, Culver, Ind.

Last year's winner from Region 1 has already distinguished himself in scholarship ROTC, and extra curricular activities at the academy.

Article 2 This amendment to take effect immediately.

When the contest for the Vanderbilt Cup was held this year in Chicago a team composed largely of university students eliminated one of the country's best known foursomes. This is just one sign of a rebirth of interest in bridge among college students.

Each year several hundred colleges take part in an intercollegiate bridge contest. The first round is played by means of pre-arranged hands, designed to select the most skillful pairs.

How would you like to test your skill as a student? Just look at the North-South cards of today's hand and plan your play to make four hearts. Don't read on until you've made up your own plan.

West leads the queen of spades, and that suit is continued until South ruffs the third round. Now South must set up dummy's diamonds or ruff out his own losing clubs (or both) in order to develop enough tricks.

Since the diamond finesse must be tried, South enters dummy with a club to lead a diamond. The queen holds, and South lays down the ace of diamonds to continue the work of clearing the suit.

When West drops the jack of diamonds South has some warning that the suit may break badly. The time has come to draw trumps, but South cannot afford to finesse. He must take the ace and then the king of hearts.

The next step is to run a diamond in the hope of dropping both of the missing diamonds. This hope fails, so South gets to the dummy with a club to ruff another diamond. Finally South ruffs a club in dummy—and he has ten tricks. East gets the last trick when the queen of hearts.

If you didn't think that way, don't worry too hard about it. Many of the college students muffed it also.

Interested scouts and their parents may receive complete information about the scholarship by contacting Dennis or by writing directly to Col. J. W. Henderson, chairman of the scholarship committee, Culver Military Academy, Culver, Ind.

Last year's winner from Region 1 has already distinguished himself in scholarship ROTC, and extra curricular activities at the academy.

Mino Says Cases Will Be Decided Week From Today

City Judge Raymond J. Mino today granted an adjournment until next Monday to the eight defendants who were arrested April 24 at 124 North Front street on charges relating to the alleged operation of a horse room, because of a death in the family of one of the defendants.

The judge informed all that the cases would be disposed of without fail when they next appear in court.

Six of the defendants: Alfred Mones, 48, of 188 Pearl street; Ben Coakman, 31, of 95 Green street; Richard Margolis, 41, of 63 Hasbrouck avenue; Max Rosenberg, 46, of 95 Green street; Samuel Stein, 53, of 565 East End avenue, New York, and Charles Fisher, 34, of 188 Pearl street, are represented by Attorney John Gotelli.

The other two, Edward Fenton, 41, town of Hurley, and Louis Dolan, 42, of 87 St. James street, are represented by Attorney Frank Martocci. John Larkin appeared for the district attorney's office.

Police said they found telephone, switchboard and teletype equipment at the North Front street place. A raid the same day at 43 Lucas avenue netted several telephones, but nothing was found at 356 Washington avenue which was also entered.

The complaint failed to appear in another case scheduled for hearing today. Robert Marshall, 24, of 54 Gill street, was arrested by his wife, Joan Sunday morning on a third degree assault charge.

The case was dismissed when Mrs. Marshall failed to appear.

despite the constant air punishment. More than 3,700 trucks were spotted Sunday. Far Eastern air forces called it an "all out Communist effort to resupply and re-equip their divisions along the battle line."

The elusive Communist air force tried out night fighting jets, presumed to be a new type. Three of them made unsuccessful passes at a lone U.N. B-26 before dawn Sunday.

Similar attacks were made Monday morning. But air officers weren't certain it was the same type of plane. Far Eastern air forces spokesmen made no attempt to describe the new jet until more is learned about it.

Extent Is Indicated
 Extent of the ground fighting was indicated by the U.S. Eighth Army's estimate of 570 Red casualties Sunday. This doesn't approach the daily toll of the Red offensive. The nine-day toll was estimated by the UN command at 75,000.

Pilots, who kept up their daily average of more than 1,000 flights, estimated they inflicted 225 casualties Sunday and knocked out 239 Red trucks.

In the ten-month-old war UN planes have made 185,000 flights, inflicting an estimated 100,000 casualties. They've reported destroying or damaging 340 Red planes, although the Communists have made no attempt to use the 3,000 aircraft they are believed to have available.

The Allies have lost 208 planes. Most of them were shot down by enemy ground fire.

UN ground forces were augmented by the arrival of the first contingent of Ethiopian troops.

Allied officials were frankly dismayed, and the German government was alarmed, at the success of the Neo-Nazi SRP, the first postwar party which had dared to make such a campaign.

The western allies found one comfort in the voting, however. The Communists suffered their worst setback since the war. Only 1.8 per cent of the vote went to them and they lost five of the seven seats they had held in the State Parliament.

Also winning parliamentary membership were the Free Democrats, 12 seats; Centrists, four; German Empire Party, three, and German Social Party, one.

It was not yet clear today what sort of coalition might be formed to set up a new state government.

Two Fires Result
 fire, Cpl. Dunn reported. Inside the nearby home of Gus Vogt, flames came from the electric switch box setting fire to the siding of the house, according to the report.

The Phenicia Fire Department was summoned and extinguished both fires. Also called to the scene were repair crews of the New York State Power and Light Company and the New York Telephone Company.

Only an unmarked stone in the middle of the street shows where Hong Kong ends and Red China begins.

On the way back, King remarked that the rolling green hillsides reminded him of Scotland.

Said Inspector MacKenzie, a native of Invernesshire: "Aye, all it wants is a bit o' heather."

Ski Lodge Burns
 Lake Placid, N. Y., May 7 (AP)—A $150,000 fire destroyed the state-owned Whiteface Mountain Ski Lodge yesterday. Fred McLean, a State Conservation Department pilot, said fire fighters were forced to concentrate on preventing spread of the fire to the tinder-dry woods. More than 100 men of nine fire companies, fought the flames. Cause of the blaze was not determined.

MARIANNE OSTIER

Woodstock, May 7—One of the sensations of recent weeks to flash so brilliantly across the firmament of the world of jewels and fashion are the now-famous "skin pins" which have come to light so mysteriously on milady's shoulders above a strapless evening gown. The exquisite diamond and palladium "skin pins" are the creation of Marianne Ostier, who, with her husband, Oliver Ostier, of the firm of Ostier, Inc., of 724 Fifth avenue, New York, purchased a home atop Ohayo Mountain overlooking the Ashokan Reservoir, several years ago.

According to an article in the Associated Press several weeks ago, by Dorothy Roe, fashion editor, Mrs. Ostier "a decorative red-head with creamy-white skin, recently startled her public by appearing at a formal function with a $25,000 diamond clip fastened to her bare shoulder. It stayed firmly in place all evening, and so intrigued the onlookers that people left the dance floor to gather round for a closer look."

Other precious jewels are employed in the various versions of the "skin pins" and the designer has definite ideas about choosing jewelry to suit the personality and the type. The blue-eyed woman, she says, wears sapphires effectively, while amethysts or topaz stones blend well with the coloring of the brown-eyed girl.

Germans Took Valuables
Prior to coming to America 10 years ago, after the Germans took over their native Austria, Oliver Ostier was court jeweler to King Zogu of Albania, and his father had been court jeweler to Emperor Franz Josef. Before her marriage into the famous family of jewelers, Marianne had been a sculptor.

When the Ostiers arrived in New York after their family business, including a fabulous collection of rubies, had been seized by the Germans, they had few assets except personal jewelry. While Oliver worked in a war production plant, Marianne began designing costume jewelry.

Now at the top of their trade the Ostiers not only make her original creations in precious jewels, but they have given an exclusive license to manufacture the "skin pins" in costume jewelry, to the well-known firm of Lido Gemstones, 366 Fifth avenue, New York. The firm will manufacture this item and distribute it on a nationwide basis.

"I am sure you will find the 'skin pins' in the Kingston stores," says Ostier.

In the special process devised by Mrs. Ostier, the fastener for the "skin pins" is a concave disk and the adhesive agent is a brown liquid, made from a secret formula. Furthermore a testing laboratory has assured Mrs. Ostier that it will cause no allergies.

Realizing a lifelong ambition, Mrs. Ostier was recently listed in Who's Who, and she hopes in the future to have a showing of her jewelry at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

New Articles Mark Opening of Guild

Woodstock, May 7.—The Woodstock Guild of Craftsmen opened for the summer season Friday afternoon with the shop rooms entirely redecorated, and with some of the articles on display regrouped for a more spacious effect. Many of the items are among those which have in the past proved always popular. However, each craftsman has succeeded in adding something new to his own line, evidence of the thought and study and meticulous work which go into the creations.

Prominently displayed in the large showroom is one of Allan Gould's striking cross-legged tables and matching bench, contrived of unusual materials. Among the smaller items are Joan Hall's exquisitely painted boxes in various sizes and shapes adorned with quaint small motifs. And a look inside discloses an equal amount of care taken with their interiors.

In the familiar line of woven or stenciled mats, scarfs, pillows and bags, new and interesting color combinations may be found. There is also an assortment of handsome new lamps and shades. A striking addition to the collection of jewelry and metal objects by Edward Chavez are several large handsome copper ash trays embossed with silver.

Mrs. M. Everett, who has gained recognition for her copper and enamel ash trays, has turned to making unique tiles, some bearing inscriptions and designs taken from old European cook books. There is a wide assortment of both jewelry and pottery as well as cards and small mementos, and books by Woodstock authors.

The newly re-arranged herb and spice shelf has been placed for better viewing with the array of jars and bottles placed in enticing rows.

One of the most appealing collections is that of the tiny, comic and highly animated and mobile animals by Dolores Christiana, with even a mousy but elegant bride and groom.

Village Notes

Woodstock, May 7.—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mollenhauer left Sunday to spend a few days in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Black spent the week-end at their home on Ohayo Mt. They will return next week-end to remain for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Rysman spent the week-end at their home in Bearsville.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Speicher returned to their home in this village last Friday.

General Is Glad Hearings at End

New York, May 7 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur—"glad the (Senate) hearings are over"—plans to remain in New York city this week.

The general rested in his Waldorf-Astoria Hotel suite yesterday after three full days of testimony in Washington before joint sessions of the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees.

When he returned here from Washington Saturday night, MacArthur told newsmen he was glad his testimony was completed.

"Now I'm home for good," he said. "I'm through with the hearing. I feel fine now that it's over."

While MacArthur remained in his suite yesterday, Mrs. MacArthur and their 13-year-old son, Arthur, attended services in St. Bartholomew's Protestant Episcopal Church, across the street from the Waldorf-Astoria.
